

Dear Sir or Madam

Dear friends

Today's newsletter is devoted to Israel's first prime minister, David Ben-Gurion, and the invention of anti-Zionism.

Today's topics

A small man of great stature. David Ben-Gurion not only proclaimed the State of Israel, but also shaped its early years as prime minister. Although he rendered great service to the country, some of his decisions continue to shape Israeli politics to this day. FokusIsrael.ch spoke with David Ben-Gurion, who, despite standing only 1.52 metres tall, ranks among the great statesmen of the 20th century, about his convictions and actions, and about what he would have done differently in retrospect. Here is the link to the AI conversation: David Ben-Gurion to FokusIsrael.ch: "We had one advantage: we were fighting for our existence!"

Moscow's greatest propaganda success. In 1947, the Soviet Union was among the supporters at the UN of a Jewish state in Palestine. But when that state later failed to align itself with Moscow, the Soviet Union began systematically defaming it. With success: "anti-Zionism made in the USSR" is now part of the political creed, especially of the European left and the Islamists allied with it. Jan Kapusnak traces the history of the Soviet Union's most successful propaganda campaign and its long-term consequences. How the Soviet Union Made Anti-Zionism a Global Creed - FokusIsrael
