

Dear Sir or Madam

Dear friends

Today's newsletter looks at Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, who was assassinated in 1981, as well as Iran, Lebanon and Gaza.

Today's topics

An uncertain future. In the Near and Middle East, many things are currently uncertain. Will the United States and Iran reach an agreement? Will Lebanon and Israel make peace? Will there be renewed war in Gaza? Read here about the current state of affairs and what could happen next. Many things are currently possible in Iran, Lebanon and Gaza – including good things

A courageous visionary. When the then Egyptian president Anwar Sadat travelled to Jerusalem in 1977, a new era began in the Middle East. Two years later, Israel and Egypt signed a peace treaty, the first between the Jewish state and an Arab state. Another two years later, Anwar Sadat paid for his courageous and visionary initiative with his life. Supported by AI, we spoke with the former Egyptian president and Nobel Peace Prize laureate Anwar Sadat about the reasons for and resistance to his historic trip to Jerusalem, the Palestinian problem, and the radical Islamism to which he himself fell victim. Anwar Sadat to FokusIsrael.ch: "Paradoxically, I went to war to make peace."

More up-to-date coverage on Israel, the Middle East and antisemitism can be found here:

More News on FokusIsrael.ch

I hope you find our information of interest.

I wish you a good weekend.

Verein Fokus Israel und Nahost

Sacha Wigdorovits

Editor-in-Chief

Verein Fokus Israel und Nahost

8702 Zollikon

newsletter@fokusisrael.ch

www.fokusisrael.ch

You received this email because at some point you expressed interest in the topics of "Israel and the Middle East" and/or "antisemitism", or because you hold a position of importance in politics, research and academia, or your professional field.

Unsubscribe from the newsletter